JAMBOREE 2016 @DPS

The English Literary week was celebrated at DPS-Bopal from November 21 to 26 through numerous activities. The aim was to instill the students with appreciation, understanding, love and usage of the English language in their daily life.

The week started on November 21, with great enthusiasm. On day 1, posters were put up on all the notice boards guiding the students through the various activities scheduled throughout the week and to invite them to donate books. On day 2 the school celebrated the English literary week special assembly. The students performed on a unique English rhyme, a skit which was a musical based on Pygmalion, which effectively brought out the importance of language and diction. The assembly was widely appreciated which aptly emphasized the importance of reading and values in our lives.

On day 3 various classroom activities were organized and conducted. Class 6 had 'Story Writing', class VII had 'Jumbled Words', class VIII had 'Poster making' the topic for the same was 'English as a global language', class IX had the 'Advertisement' activity, in which the students made advertisements related to 'Healthy food and drinks', class X prepared 'Book covers' in which the students made their own stories and attractive covers, and class XI and XII had the 'cryptic crossword', enhancing the power of drawing inferences quickly. The English literary week is incomplete without fun and play.

Day 4 was the day waited by everyone, the day of the English literary week fun fair. It was one of the events that marked the celebration of English week in the school. It had all kinds of spectacular attractions like selfie booth, photo booth, food stalls, juice stalls and book donation booth. The fair was a marked success by the excited students standing in lines to grab a bite or get a selfie with children dressed up as famous authors like JK Rowling, Ruskin Bond etc.

In keeping with the school motto of service before self, the proceeds from the funfair will go to charity. The books collected from students will be gifted to students of different municipal schools in the vicinity. On the last day DPS-Bopal hosted an author and editor talk. Editor bestowed the students of class X and XI with his vast knowledge on communication and language. He explained that communication is the basic foundation of any society. It is the language that distinguishes the humans from other species of the world and it is one of the keys to success.

In the author's meet students had the opportunity to welcome Nimish Thakkar, an author and an illuminated individual who has carved a niche for himself in self-help books. He described his journey as tumultuous and has burnt the midnight oil to get to his present position. He gave an inspirational message to budding authors, advising them not to be daunted by the enormous amount of books written. He emphasized that patience is the key when it comes to penning down the books. Over the entire event, he encouraged and motivated the students to increase their command on the English language.

Summing up, the panorama of interesting and knowledge-filled activities to facilitate the effective learning and participation of maximum number of students was organized. The literary week brought the students closer to the magic of language and literature. It was a great success with maximum participation by our students which helped them in enhancing their varied skills.
