Commerce met creativity at its finest!

The Commerce Canvas Exhibition was organised by the Department of Commerce and Fine Arts at Delhi Public School - Bopal on July 19. The ground floor of the Radhakrishna Building was buzzing with life, creativity, and the unmistakable energy of young entrepreneurs.

Each stall reflected passion and planning. Some of the most heartwarming setups included "Treasures by Riya" - a delightful stall of homemade brownies - and beautifully handcrafted bracelets by "Lunaire" and "Divine Dazzle." The fragrance stall, The Ittar Studio, drew in a surprisingly large crowd. Then there was the Ping Pong Entrepreneur Game - a clever, interactive way of helping visitors remember business personalities through play.

More than just showcasing their creations, several stalls also aimed to educate and inform. There were brilliant visual displays on the history of the Indian rupee and coins, and one group even built a working model explaining credit and debit systems. From blush and nail art to mandala art bookmarks- everything was homemade, handcrafted, and handled with care. Every student had a story, a brand name, a pitch - and most importantly, a sense of ownership and pride.

The exhibition was graced by the presence of director Vandna Joshi, principal Sabina Sawhney, vice principal R.Uma-maheswari and all the section heads- whose encouragement and appreciation added great motivation to the student entrepreneurs. Parents lingered longer than expected. Teachers proudly browsed from stall to stall. There was laughter, learning, and a whole lot of networking.
